Does that mean you're his not-a-date? As opposed to his date?

Are you, you know, okay with this?

Well, he is kinda dating (really dating, not not-dating) this other girl. Woman. His own age. And so he says to me, "So you should know about this girl I'm dating." And I'm like, "Whoa, Chester, does she know we're Really Good Friends?" And he's like, "You said we Weren't Dating." And I'm like, "Does this mean you want to stop being Really Good Friends? And just be friends? Because I'm okay with that. But I have gotten to kind of like being friends. Also, lazy about finding boys." And he's like, "Well, no, not if you're okay with it, it doesn't mean we have to stop being Really Good Friends. It might mean like, alternate weekends." And I'm like, "And she's okay with that?" And he's like, "What, you think I would lie about something like that?" And I'm like, "Guys and their penises, man. Even if the guy isn't lying, the penis will." And he's like, "I think you should meet her."

And I'm like, "I want backup for that."

...kids these days. I tell ya.

I feel as if I am somehow being generationally blamed for your confusion. I would like to register a complaint.

You're both whippersnappers. Stopit.

...

I might even let you borrow it sometimes. That is, if I were to happen to have one.

We blame you for entirely different confusion.
You are a cyclonic force of wholly-original confusion, independent of generational influences.

Dude. I think I would have wanted backup for that conversation right there.

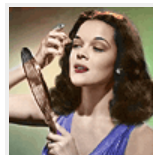

So...you're not sure yet if you're okay with this?

Okay, Friday night you're going to a show by a band you're not that into with the guy you're Really Good Friends with and his girlfriend, who you haven't met. Have I got that right?

Yeah, I got your back. If it's all too much suck, we will run away to the diner and I will buy you pie until you tell me to stop.

(Penises don't lie. Penises are always In Love. *g*)

I don't know how I can be sure if I'm okay with it until I've done it. I'm not sure I'm not okay with it. Which is about all I can bring to the party right now, amiga.

"Okay, Friday night you're going to a show by a band you're not that into with the guy you're Really Good Friends with and his girlfriend, who you haven't met. Have I got that right?"

Tim Curry couldn't have explained it better. So you comprehend my confusion, and why I think I want to go back home and pull a pillow over my head?

Not dating is easier than not-dating. Just so you know.

Not dating is easier than not-dating.

This is becoming clear to me. Yow.

I get from this that you're entering a totally upheavalish and psychotic period in your life and you would like your friends to be supportive and understanding. Which includes not reminding you the place is full of profilers. Right? Okay, I can do that.

I'm taking a late lunch. Have you had yours? Can I take you out so you can think out loud at me?

Yes. To all those things. I have had one lunch. But I ate at my desk, and I could have two. There could be cheesecake and girl talk.

We like the Notaboy. And we know he has good taste. So maybe we'll also like the Girl? (Though authorization is not required for the activation of this account. Or something.)

He's not allowed to be mean. His approval rating drops to zero if that happens. Just so you know.

It would be weird to like the Girl.

But maybe okay? I dunno.

And if he's mean, sweetie, nevermind his approval rating. Think about what happens to his credit rating.
